

PAID INTERNSHIP IN WEB DESIGN

The Kennedy Center, the nation's institution for the performing arts, is currently seeking candidates interested in an internship in web design with our web content department. We offer a 40 hour per week paid internship for students to learn from high-level, meaningful work in the electronic arts. Students interested in being a significant part of a Washington D.C. institution's electronic business program, and who possess the desire for increasing their design skills through challenging interactions with cutting edge E-commerce technologies, are encouraged to apply. Student interns will:

- * Enhance your design and programming skills in Macromedia/Adobe programs
- * Develop content and put your ideas to the test inside a variety of applications
- * Learn what a full-scale E-commerce website needs to be effective
- * Gain a real world understanding of systems integration
- * Contribute and implement ideas to our website
- * Last but not least, a $400 bi-weekly stipend

For more details and application go to:

<http://www.kennedy-center.org/webintern>

