

Gary DeVault

Contact: (330) 345-6771 ext. 252

E-mail: TESC_DeVault@tccsa.net

Topic or Theme

1. The Power of Arts Assessment in Teaching and Learning
2. The Arts Beyond the School Day: Extending the Power
3. Developing Effective School and Community Arts Partnerships: A Vision and Responsibility Integral to Education Reform
4. Developing Arts Leaders: Knowledge + Networking + Action = Effective Leadership

Audience

- Arts educators, arts organizations, principals, artists, teachers (K-12), school board members
- District education leaders, arts educators, arts and community organizations, teaching artists, business people
- School leaders, educators, artists, community arts organizations, community members, higher education, parents
- Non-profit arts organization leadership, policy makers, professional arts organizations

Gary DeVault, Director of Arts Education for the Tri-County Educational Service Center in rural Ohio, has extensive experience in arts assessment, after-school arts programs, school and community arts education partnerships, and nonprofit arts leadership development. He has served as an arts education consultant at the local, state, and national level and has secured funding for and directed state and federally funded arts education projects. He recently served as consultant to the Ohio Department of Education for the development of Ohio's Academic Content Standards in the Arts. He currently is Project Coordinator for the Ohio Kennedy Center State-Based Collaborative Initiative. He is a past chair of the Kennedy Center Alliance for Arts Education Network (1996–1997) and is a past member of the Kennedy Center Partners in Education Advisory Committee.