

Linda Goldberg

Contact: (703) 304-2051

E-mail: Lzgoldberg@aol.com

Topic or Theme

1. Creating a Magnet/Model School for the Arts
2. Standards-Based Education:
The Role of the Arts
3. Advocating for the Arts: Making Connections
Throughout the Curriculum

Audience

- Principals, school board members, parents, arts leaders, community members
- Principals, school board members, parents, arts leaders, community members
- Principals, school board members, parents, arts leaders, community members, policy makers

LINDA GOLDBERG is an educational consultant with more than 30 years of experience as a principal, teacher, and presenter. She developed and directed a magnet school for the arts and sciences, and consults both nationally and internationally. Ms. Goldberg has appeared as a commentator on numerous local and national television programs on educational topics. She created an award-winning partnership with George Mason University Institute of the Arts, resulting in student productions of original opera as well as opportunities for professional development for teachers. She is a member of the Principal's Arts Education Forum at the Kennedy Center, and participates with the Kennedy Center in a grant for the improvement of education through the arts.